Bites & Insights IN THE BOARDROOM

Thurs, Aug 28
1:00 - 2:00 pm

AI & ChatGPT

ChatGPT made this graphic for us based on our prompts too!

Join us for another exciting Bites & Insights session in The Boardroom next month. For this session, Andrew Votsmier, our very own IT guru is going to teach us everything he knows about ChatGPT and AI. Of course we couldn't pass up the opportunity to use ChatGPT to write the training description for us, so here it goes:

During the ChatGPT and AI training session, participants will gain a solid understanding of artificial intelligence fundamentals and how large language models like ChatGPT work. Learn how to effectively use ChatGPT for tasks such as content creation, brainstorming, research, customer support, and automation. The session will also cover prompt engineering techniques, ethical considerations, and practical use cases in business, education, and daily workflows. By the end of class, attendees will be equipped to confidently integrate AI tools into their personal or professional routines.

Not too bad, AI! Andrew added the class "will show you how to spot common patterns, phrasing, and cadence used by these models. This will help you identify how content was written, and clean up your own AI-assisted writing to make it sound less like ChatGPT." If this sounds appealing to you, sign up for the class by clicking or scanning the QR code. Remember, space is limited, so sign up quickly to reserve your seat!

Thank you so much for all of the name suggestions for our newest fuzzy tenants. Because we had such a great response for the Queen's names, we narrowed down the list to choose from. Scan or click the QR code to cast your vote for our royal duo! The winning names will be shared in the next newsletter.

STEP BY STEP, WE HONOR THE FALLEN

This year, we are preparing for the 4th annual 9/11 Memorial Tower Climb. Participants are local first responders who climb or walk the equivalent of 110 stories—the same number of floors of the World Trade Center. Each climber wears a badge displaying the name and photo of one of the 416 fallen first responders that ran into the buildings to help on that fateful day. As participants reach the end of the memorial climb, they ring a ceremonial fire bell on the street and place their name on the board symbolizing they completed the climb for the fallen first responder.

JOIN US!

Sat, September 13
Opening Ceremony: 8:15 am
301 Commerce Street

While the climbers must be first responders, we invite anyone to come watch, remember, support, and cheer on today's heroes as they climb. On street level there will be meaningful memorial displays, including a piece of twisted steel from the towers, the photo quilt sharing the faces of thousands who died in the attacks, a moving opening ceremony with local leaders, and a guest speaker from NYFD to share their personal story.
